

As Daniel grew older, he became the biggest and strongest tiger in the jungle. But even though he was now the king of the jungle, he still remembered his friends from when he was a cub. So when a family of lions got into trouble, Daniel was the first one to help them.

The family was very grateful, and they all became good friends. Daniel would visit them often, and he even helped teach the cubs how to hunt and survive in the jungle. Everyone in the jungle knew that Daniel was the friendly tiger, and they all loved him for it.